Hi Kitty/Steve,

As a roofing professional, you understand the importance of safeguarding homes from all potential damage. One common issue that often goes unnoticed until it's too late is the risk posed by solar panels without proper protection, like critter guard.

We recently completed a job where pigeons and other critters made their home under solar panels. Without a critter guard, these small animals can cause major issues:

- Roof and panel damage: Birds can leave unsightly messes that ruin the roof's appearance.
- Wiring hazards: They tend to chew through wiring under the panels, potentially leading to electrical issues or even fires.
- Health concerns: Their nests and droppings can create health risks for homeowners.

This simple solution of adding a critter guard can prevent these headaches for your clients. If you're a roofing company or working with solar customers, partnering with us ensures the job is done right, protecting the solar system and roof for years.

Don't let your clients' investments suffer—get ahead of the problem with our Critter Guard Installations today.

Let's chat about how we can help you keep your clients' roofs critter-free and well-maintained!

Best regards,
